Education

High school, Xai-Xai Secondary School, Xai-Xai

2016 – 2020

I completed my high school education with a specialization in Group C Science, where I gained a strong foundation in mathematics and analytical thinking. These skills became the bedrock for my career in software development. My high school years equipped me with the fundamental problem-solving abilities and logical reasoning that are essential in the world of software development. This academic background has been instrumental in my journey as a software developer, helping me to design and implement innovative solutions to complex problems in the ever-evolving field of technology.
